Friendship paradox

Sociologist Scott Feld showed that most people have fewer friends, on average, than their friends have

